DETAILED ACTION

This communication is in response to Applicant's Response to Election/Restriction filed 05 June 2007.

Status of Claims

Claims 1-28 are currently pending. Claim 29 has been withdrawn.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

1. Claims 1-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hollerman et al (US Patent Publication US2003/0023536 A1, hereinafter Hollerman) and further in view of Forward-Start Options (Forward). In reference to claims 1 and 18, Hollerman discloses a method and system for displaying financial instruments adapted to be listed and traded on a trading facility on which a plurality of standard options are listed and traded, comprising

- a. selecting an underlying asset having a variable value (0002-0017);
- b. listing a plurality of standard options to either buy or sell a stake in the underlying asset at a fixed strike price (0018-0019).

2. Hollerman also discloses a method and system for displaying financial instruments adapted to be listed and traded on a trading facility on which a plurality of standard options are listed and traded, wherein:

- c. The underlying asset is a tangible asset;
- d. The tangible asset is a security;
- e. The tangible asset is a commodity;
- f. The tangible asset is a bond or note;
- g. The tangible asset is an exchange traded fund;
- h. The underlying asset is an intangible asset;
- i. The intangible asset is a market index;
- j. The intangible asset is a derivative;
- k. The delayed start option comprises a call option;
- l. The delayed start option comprises a put option;
- m. The strike price setting date is three months prior to the expiration date;

- n. The strike price setting date is 30 days prior to the expiration date;
- o. The strike price setting date is two months prior to the expiration date (0002-0018).

Hollerman does not disclose the system, which displays the financial instruments adapted to be listed and traded on a trading facility to include:

- p. creating a delayed start option to either buy or sell a stake in the underlying asset at a strike price to be determined on a predefined strike setting date in the future ; and
- q. converting said delayed start option to a standard option selected from said plurality of standard options having a fixed strike price at or near the value of the underlying asset on the strike price setting date, thereby creating a standard at-the-money option as of the strike price setting date.

However, in reference to claims 1 and 18, Forward discloses a method comprising:

- r. creating a delayed start option to either buy or sell a stake in the underlying asset at a strike price to be determined on a predefined strike setting date in the future (page 1-2); and
- s. converting said delayed start option to a standard option selected from said plurality of standard options having a fixed strike price at or near the value of the underlying asset on the strike price setting date, thereby creating a standard at-the-money option as of the strike price setting date (page 1-2).

Art Unit: 3693

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the Applicant's invention to have modified the system of Hollerman, which displays financial instruments to be listed and traded to include the standard at-the-money option created in Forward because Hollerman discloses that the system could be utilized to sell "an alternative asset such as any other type of security, commodity or derivative" (Hollerman: 0003).

3. In reference to claims 15-17, Forward discloses:

- t. The standard option to which the delayed start option is converted is a standard option from among said plurality of standard options having a fixed strike price nearest the value of the underlying asset on the strike price setting date;
- u. the standard option to which the delayed start option is converted is the standard option from among said plurality of standard options having a fixed strike price nearest to and less than the value of the underlying asset;
- v. the standard option to which the delayed start option is converted is a standard option from among said plurality of standard options having a fixed strike price nearest to and greater than the value of the underlying asset on the strike price setting date.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the Applicant's invention to have modified the system of Hollerman, which displays financial instruments to be listed and traded to include the standard at-the-money option created in Forward and the conversion mechanism detailed above because Hollerman discloses that the system could be utilized to sell "an alternative asset such as any other type of security, commodity or derivative" (Hollerman: 0003).

4. In reference to claims 19-22, Forward discloses a forward-start option method which converts to a standard option contract and details the conversion process (page 1-2). In reference to claims 23-28, Forward discloses a forward-start option method in which there is an allocation process (page 1-2). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the Applicant's invention to have modified the system of Hollerman, which displays financial instruments to be listed and traded to include the standard at-the-money option created in Forward and the conversion and allocation mechanisms detailed above because Hollerman discloses that the system could be utilized to sell "an alternative asset such as any other type of security, commodity or derivative" (Hollerman: 0003).
